DYESKIT · LADAKH VILLAGE WELL-BEING

How a household's score is calculated

Every answer is worth fixed points out of 100. Averages of those points give each dimension, then the household, then the village. There are no hidden formulas — only look-up tables and averages. Every number on this page comes from the app's own scoring code.

Scoring v3.1-fixed-points · Questionnaire v3.1 · 7 dimensions · 53 scored questions

From one answer to a village score

Step 1
Answer → points
Each answer has fixed points from 0 to 100, from a table.

Step 2
Dimension score
Average of the points of that dimension's answered questions.

Step 3
Household score
Average of the 7 dimension scores.

Step 4
Band
The household score falls in one of 7 bands, 1 to 7.

Step 5
Village score
Average of its household scores. Same for a district or any group.

Rules that apply to every question

Fixed points per answer
The best answer is worth 100, the worst 0, and the ones between get set steps (25, 50, 75 or 33, 67).

"Don't know" and "Prefer not to answer" = 50
They give the middle score, so not knowing neither helps nor hurts much.

Skipped questions are left out
A blank question is not counted as 0. It is simply not part of the average.

1–5 scales
Every 1–5 question uses the same points:

1 · Strongly disagree	0
2 · Disagree	25
3 · Neutral	50
4 · Agree	75
5 · Strongly agree	100

Reversed questions
When agreeing is the bad answer ("Our family feels cut off in winter", "Young people are losing interest in Ladakhi culture"), the points run the other way: 1 = 100 … 5 = 0.

Tick-all questions count the ticks
Support types, village groups, adaptation measures and education barriers score by how many real options are ticked, through a fixed table (shown under each one below). "None" counts as 0 ticks.

Height and weight (BMI)
Optional. Each adult (18+) measured gets points from the Asian BMI table below; the question scores the average over those adults. Children are recorded but not scored.

Healthy (18.5–22.9)	100
Overweight (23.0–24.9)	70
Mildly thin (17.0–18.4)	60
Obese (25.0–29.9)	40
Moderately thin (16.0–16.9)	30
Below 16.0, or 30.0 and above	0

When a dimension counts
At least half of its questions (and at least 2) must be answered. For example a dimension with 9 questions needs 5; one with 6 needs 3.

When a household gets a score
At least 5 of the 7 dimensions must count. Otherwise the survey shows "Not enough answers".

WORKED EXAMPLE

One family, every step

EXAMPLE HOUSEHOLD

A family of four in a Leh village: father 52, son 19, mother 48, daughter 15. They agreed to be measured. Their answers are realistic but made up for this page; the points and averages are exactly what the app calculates.

Steps 1–2: points, then each dimension

NO.	QUESTION	ANSWER	POINTS
B1a	Height & weight of each family member Nutrition (BMI)	see the family table 3 adults measured — BMI 23.4, 19.6, 25.4	70
B2	Does anyone in the family have a long-term illness diagnosed by a doctor? Chronic illness	Managed with medication	50
B3	Do family members get altitude symptoms (breathlessness, constant headache, tiredness)? Altitude symptoms	Occasionally	50
B4	Nearest health facility the family would use Distance to healthcare	1–10 km	75
B5	Last year, was anyone in the family unable to reach care because of snow, road or distance? Winter access to care	Once	50
B6	How physically active is the family on a normal day? Physical activity	Very active — farming, herding or labour	100

B7	Do family members get enough sleep (about 7 hours) most nights? Sleep	Mostly	67
B8	Family toilet Sanitation	Traditional dry-compost toilet	100
B11	Overall, how would you rate your family's physical health? Overall physical health	Good	75
	Total of 9 answered questions		637

`637 ÷ 9 = 70.8`

Counts — 9 answered, 5 needed.

How B1a (height & weight) got its points

MEMBER	AGE	HEIGHT	WEIGHT	BMI	POINTS
Male 1	52	168 cm	66 kg	23.4	70
Male 2	19	172 cm	58 kg	19.6	100
Female 1	48	155 cm	61 kg	25.4	40
Female 2	15	158 cm	45 kg	18	60 — child, not used

`(70 + 100 + 40) ÷ 3 adults = 70`

BMI = weight in kg ÷ (height in metres)². Example: 66 ÷ (1.68 × 1.68) = 23.4 → "Overweight (23.0–24.9)" → 70 points.

Step 3–4: the household score and its band

The household score is the plain average of its seven dimension scores. Every dimension weighs the same, whether it has 6 questions or 9.

DIMENSION	SCORE
Physical	70.8
Financial	55.6
Emotional	58.3
Social	71.4
Environmental	66.7
Intellectual	63.1
Spiritual	79.2
Total of 7 dimensions	465.1

`465.1 ÷ 7 = 66.44 → 66.4`

7 of 7 dimensions count (5 needed), so the household gets a score.

HOUSEHOLD SCORE

66.4

Band 5 · Advancing Well-Being

66.4 is between 57 and 70.

The seven bands

1 · 0–14 Foundational	2 · 15–28 Emerging	3 · 29–42 Developing	4 · 43–56 Basic	5 · 57–70 Advancing	6 · 71–84 Strong	7 · 85–100 Thriving

The band is chosen from the exact average before rounding. Rounding to one decimal is only for display.

Step 5: village, district and any group

A village score is the average of its households' scores — not of their answers. Each household counts once, whatever its size. A district is the average of all its surveyed households, and the same goes for any filter (women respondents, age 60+, one round…). Dimension scores for a group are averaged the same way.

HOUSEHOLD	BAND	SCORE
The example family	5 · Advancing	66.4
Another household (example 2)	7 · Thriving	87.6
Another household (example 3)	3 · Developing	38.1
Total of 3 households		192.1

`192.1 ÷ 3 = 64.0 → Band 5 · Advancing Well-Being`

Is the village result reliable?

A village's score is called reliable once at least 30% of its households, and at least 10, have been surveyed. If this village has 40 households on record, it needs 12 surveys (30% of 40 = 12, and never fewer than 10). With 3 surveys it is not yet reliable.

Self-reported surveys (filled in by a household member) count in village and district scores only after a supervisor approves them.

Flags

A dimension averaging below 43 ("Basic") is flagged; below 29 it is critical. Warning signs such as "no bank account" are reported by the share of households they apply to: watch from 15%, serious from 30%, critical from 50%.

REFERENCE

Every scored question and what each answer is worth

Numbers (B4, F5…) are the ones shown in the app. A question asked in one section can score in another dimension — for example drinking-water quality (B10) is asked in Physical but counts in Environmental.
